Sheriff Seeks Hit-Skip Killer

A reward of $100 has been offered by Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff for information leading to the arrest of a hit-skip driver responsible for the death of a six-year old Ashville boy Saturday night.

The sheriff said a check for that amount has been deposited with County Treasurer Robert Colville. Similar measures may be adopted by Ashville citizens, it was reported.

Witnesses described the car which struck down Paul Eldon Lawhun of 211 Scioto street as a light-colored sedan, according to the sheriff.

The accident occurred on Ashville's Main street when the Lawhun boy darted toward his father's parked car. He had been shopping for Cracker-Jack in a grocery with his seven-year old sister, Theda.

SHERIFF Radcliff said parents of the two children, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lawhun, had stopped their car across the street from the grocery to let the children out.

As they left the store Paul held back his sister while a west-bound car passed. Then he darted ahead.

An east-bound car, travelling at high speed, according to witnesses, struck him as he reached the center of the street and dragged him approximately 120 feet.

The child was picked up by Amos Hollenback of Ashville, who said he thought the boy one of his own children.

He told Radcliff he paid more attention to the child than to the actual description of the car, although he thought he saw the vehicle stop and that the driver looked back before speeding on.

The accident was also witnessed by four youths standing near the grocery store, Radcliff reported.

THE SHERIFF said he hoped that the killer-driver's conscience eventually would force him to identify himself.

Determined to work the case until the driver was apprehended, Radcliff was angry. He labeled the case "a murder" and pledged to "catch that driver."

He declared: "When we do catch him, we will throw the hooks into him—and we will catch him."

GE Building Crew Ready To Pull Up Stakes

Just about 13 months ago, the Steine-Wolfe Construction Co. of Fremont moved into Circleville to begin work in mud, slush and snow.

This week, the construction crew is about ready to pull up stakes to move on, leaving behind the new $2.5 million General-Electric factory.

Spokesmen for the construction firm have reported their work "almost finished" and say they probably will leave within a month.

First above-ground construction on Circleville's newest plant began last year with the pouring of footers by a "pumpcrete", which literally pumped a stream of concrete hundreds of yards to the forms.

Pickaway Countians can look back to the days when they passed the plant, then in embryonic stages, and watched it grow into its present shape.

Finishing touches now are being put on the plant office, after which, say the construction men, they will be finished.

The plant, however, is not yet fully equipped nor capable of its capacity production. But installation of equipment will be handled by other workmen.

Bucyrus Firm Lengthens Week

BUCYRUS, March 29 — Anti-depression note.

The Shunk Manufacturing Co. is shifting from an eight to a nine-hour day and reported today it would add new employees to its roster of about 125 men.

The company, which manufactures blades for road building machinery, said an increase in steel supply was responsible.

RACETRACK RULING OK'D

Committee Work Faces Solons In Legislature

COLUMBUS, March 29—The bill to unify all Ohio conservation activities in one new state "department of natural resources" may be recommended for passage tonight by the house conservation committee—but whether with or without the so-called "Metzenbaum amendment" remains to be seen.

The amendment places the wildlife division of the new department on exactly the same status as the other six divisions.

The League of Ohio Sportsmen is spearheading a drive to retain the independence of control now enjoyed by the present conservation commission, which would become the wildlife division under the bill.

Meanwhile, the house passed and sent to the senate Gov. Frank Lausche's bill to tighten the regulations for the establishment of new racetracks.

There was little opposition to the measure, which would require new track sponsors to accompany their application with a petition of approval, signed by 51 percent of the voters in the township or townships where the track is to be located, and who voted in the previous election for governor. The vote was 99-19.

Nicaragua Offers Canal

Air Bases Also Available To U.S.

MEXICO CITY, March 29—Nicaragua has offered the United States a 99-year lease on air bases and has agreed to grant other privileges to help the U. S. begin immediate construction of a new Pacific-Atlantic canal.

The offer was made last night by Nicaraguan Defense Minister Anastasio Somoza, who has long advocated a Nicaraguan canal, believes that the air bases would aid defense of the proposed inter-oceanic link, and would generally bolster continental security.

The Nicaraguan "strong man" declared: "Nicaragua will give an option of 99 years to the United States for construction of a canal and necessary and just bases in the Gulf of Fonseca (on the Pacific) and the Corn Islands (in the Atlantic)."

"THE BASES and facilities are available if the United States begins the immediate construction of the canal."

"Nicaragua, as during the last war, will always be allied with the United States and with the greatest pleasure would offer facilities for the construction of bases for defense of the canal and for continental security."

Proposals to build a canal across Nicaragua have been discussed by U. S. and Central (Continued on Page Two)

Dutch Ready For Peace Talk

THE HAGUE, March 29—The Dutch government informed the United Nations Indonesian Commission today that it is ready to participate in preliminary discussions with Indonesian Republicans as proposed by the UN Security Council.

The council on March 23 instructed the commission to attempt to persuade The Netherlands to restore the native capital at Jogjakarta.

The council asked that the commission get the Republicans and the Dutch to agree on a date for a Hague conference to settle the future of the Dutch East Indies.

County Official Still Waiting Poll Decision

Pickaway County Prosecutor Guy Cline Tuesday still was awaiting a decision by Secretary of State Charles F. Sweeney on whether Circleville's two candidates for mayor may run as independents.

Cline asked Sweeney to cite state law in the question after the secretary of state had ruled Mayor Thurman I. Miller and Councilman Robert E. Adkins could not appear on the ballot as Democrats.

Cline now wants Sweeney to rule whether the two men can legally run as independents. Cline cites that various state statutes and court decisions are in conflict on this question.

Sweeney's office Tuesday was non-committal on Cline's request.

A top aide to Sweeney has indicated that no request for a ruling will be honored since there is no doubt in the aide's mind that the two men are eligible to run. State government sources point out:

(1) The two men can file as independents without regard to previous attempts to get on the ballot because actually they have not officially been candidates. The law provides only that a man cannot be a "candidate" twice for the same office the same year.

(2) Although they would not run as Democrats, they would not lose their party affiliation. Cited is the practice of Cleveland judges who always file as "independents" although everyone knows they remain good Democrats or Republicans.

GENERAL INFLATION NO LONGER A DANGER

Wall Street Stock Buying Rulings Relaxed By Federal Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, March 29—Federal economy chiefs placed a cushion under declining business today in a move admitted as recognition that deflation is under way and general inflation is no longer a threat.

The Federal Reserve Board, acting for the second time in recent weeks, slashed the required margin on stock purchases from 75 to 50 percent, effective tomorrow.

Marriner S. Eccles, vice-chairman of the board, was asked if the action was recognition that the nation has moved into a deflationary period. He replied: "Yes, by all means it is."

Eccles, in a general discussion of the economic situation, said that a certain amount of deflation is a "healthy thing for the country."

THE BOARD'S latest ruling boosted from 25 to 50 percent the amount of credit which brokers and banks can extend on stock purchases.

The present rule has been in effect since Feb. 1, 1947. For 11 months before that, the margin had been 100 percent which meant that stock had to be paid for almost entirely in cash.

Earlier this month, the board relaxed consumer credit controls by providing longer terms on purchases of automobiles, furniture, refrigerators, washing machines, radios and several other household items.

The board said that the new action on stocks was taken "in the light of the general credit situation."

A board official pointed out that volume of stock sales has declined sharply. Government statistics disclosed that the amount of credit extended for stock purchases is at the lowest ebb since 1946.

The official said that not merely credit for stock purchases but bank credit generally has been contracting for the last six or eight weeks.

THE STOCK market has been in the doldrums for months and Wall Street has demanded a lowering of margin requirements to stimulate buying.

Like the action on installment credit, the reduction of the margins is looked upon as a "shot in the arm" to business.

Board officials said, however, that there is not immediate prospect of a cut in reserve requirements of federal reserve member banks. He said banks "have an ample supply of reserves."

ACCUSED OF SLAYING Patricia Birmingham, his 16-year-old sister-in-law, and dropping her weighted body into the Milwaukee river, Milton Babich, 19-year-old high school honor student, is denied bail in a court hearing. He will be arraigned April 12 on a charge of first degree murder. At the hearing, from left (standing, facing camera), are District Attorney William A. McCauley; Defense Attorneys Edward T. Berkanovic and Arthur W. Richter; Babich; Detective Oscar Tschury and Sheriff Herman Kubiak.

ECA Loans To Be Slashed Sharply In Coming Years

WASHINGTON, March 29—Top foreign aid officials said today the Economic Cooperation Administration plans to curtail sharply recovery loans to Western Europe during the next three years.

ECA credit experts expressed belief that 12 recovery nations receiving ECA loans, are now in a position where further credit in large amounts would be unwise economically.

Wayne C. Taylor, assistant to ECA Administrator Paul G.

Hoffman, and L. Corrin Strong, agency loan director, pointed out that ECA will complete its $973.7 million loan program for the first year of operations this week.

Another $26.3 million has been earmarked for guarantees to American businessmen investing dollars abroad. Combined, the two programs will meet congressional requirements that at least $1 billion be allocated in the form of credits.

Taylor declared that agency officials working with the government's top fiscal group, the National Advisory Council, "carefully" worked out the credits so that the various European governments could function without the burden of too many loans. He said:

"IF ANOTHER billion dollars is put into the loan program next year, it may ruin the recovery effort and halt the flow of credit to those countries from private sources."

Under present ECA plans, between $100 and $200 million will be scheduled for loans during the fiscal year which begins next July 1.

This statement was made during recent congressional hearings on ERP legislation by Assistant Deputy Administrator Richard M. Bissell.

Taylor said he could make no estimates until new appropriations are made by Congress. But, he said that any new loans would be made only to those nations which can make repayments without difficulty.

Pending ECA legislation would leave determination as to how much new money should be given in loans to Hoffman.

Taylor said, in line with this, that the larger nations like Britain, France and Italy probably would receive little additional credits next year while some of the smaller nations, much better off financially, may be designated for this type of assistance.

Local Phone Hike Eyed

PUCO OKs Boost For Bell System

The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio Tuesday still was studying an application by the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. to increase telephone rates.

Ohio Consolidated serves nearly all of Pickaway County and Circleville. Its main offices are in Portsmouth.

Contrary to a report in Circleville, a PUCO official said Tuesday that no revision or resubmission of the proposed new rates have been made to the PUCO by Ohio Consolidated.

The telephone firm made application last Dec. 31 for a revision upward in rates. A public hearing will be held before PUCO takes final action, but no date for this has been set.

Meanwhile, PUCO announced that the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. has been granted permission to boost its rates immediately. Ohio Bell serves 80 percent of telephone subscribers in the Buckeye State.

IN APPROVING Ohio Bell's application for an annual increase of $8,475,860, PUCO granted everything asked for by the company.

The rate hike will mean the addition of 25 to 35 cents per (Continued on Page Two)

U.S. Envoy Delivers Protest

Secret Trial Is Revealed

PRAGUE, March 29 — The Czechoslovak government sentenced two American soldiers to long prison terms for alleged espionage today and the United States embassy promptly lodged a stern protest.

A formal note expressed the U. S. government's "serious concern" over the soldiers' secret trial "without normal rights and safeguards." Embassy officials were not permitted to talk to the men before their conviction.

U. S. Ambassador Joseph E. Jacobs immediately informed the State Department in Washington and framed a campaign of action.

American authorities said the men are Pvt. George R. Jones of Owensboro, Ky., and Pvt. Clarence F. Hill of Jackson, Miss. Jones was sentenced to 10 years in prison and Hill to 12.

Jacobs said: "I am in touch with the State Department regarding action to be taken."

"The embassy has not yet received official notification of the sentences. I requested information concerning the detention of these two men some time ago and asked for an opportunity to see them."

"I WAS TOLD that they would be tried under an article of the penal code dealing with espionage. My request to see them was denied."

In Frankfurt, headquarters of U. S. Military Governor Gen. Lucius D. Clay said the matter was on "State Department level" and that Army action is unlikely.

Jacobs said he learned of the sentences through a bulletin of the Czechoslovakian news agency. He continued: "I do not know where the men are imprisoned."

"They were at Pilsen for a while and then were brought to Prague but I don't know where they are now."

Jacobs declined to say whether he considered the action as retaliation for the recent conviction of Czechoslovak spies in the U. S. zone of Germany.

An official announcement of a state court of the Communist-controlled Prague government identified the GIs as Cpl. Alexander Hunter — "alias Jones"—and Pvt. Clarence Hill, both with the occupation forces in Germany.

Cool-Off Urged On Pension Bill For War I Vets

WASHINGTON, March 29—An administration supporter, Rep. Huber, (D) Ohio, today called for a cooling-off period in the House Veterans Committee before any further action is taken on pension legislation.

Huber made the suggestion as Chairman Rankin, (D) Miss., swiftly opened hearings on his new pension measure devised as a substitute for the bill which was killed in the house last week.

Spokesmen for the Veterans Administration were called to testify on the new bill which would provide a $72 a month pension to World War I veterans at the age of 65.

Huber, who threatened to lead a revolt against Rankin's committee leadership last week, declared that he will fight any move to push the new bill through the House group without full study.

Rankin's initial bill would have provided pensions of $90 a month for veterans of both World War I and II at 65. It was sent back to the committee after being riddled with amendments. The Veterans Administration estimated that it would have cost $125 billion in its first 50 years of operation.

U.S. Envoy Delivers Protest

(Continued from Page One) ment said that the two Americans were sentenced Saturday. They were charged with illegally crossing the Czech frontier last December "with the intention of spying on Czechoslovakia."

The statement said that "in the course of these activities" the two U. S. soldiers were caught by secret police.

PRAGUE SOURCES said that the trial of the two GIs occurred in secret and that U. S. authorities were not informed of the proceedings until, apparently, today.

The American embassy had been attempting to reach the soldiers since December. A U. S. spokesman stated that early in March, it was learned that Czechoslovakia intended to try the two soldiers, but the whereabouts of the GIs was unknown.

The only direct contact with the two enlisted men since their arrest was a censored letter from Hill dated Jan. 15, when it was believed the soldiers were being held in a prison in Pilsen.

U. S. sources in Prague said that the men had been missing from Germany since early December and had been regarded as deserters.

American officials denied categorically that Hill and Jones had been sent on a "special mission."

The 80-word official Czech statement gave no details of the charges or the hearing.

Postmaster A. Hulse Hays announced Tuesday that bids have been opened to coal dealers and truck drivers for unloading, hauling and storing of approximately 50 tons of coal in the basement of Circleville postoffice.

He said the coal is expected late in November and must be removed and hauled within the allowable time without the penalty of demurrage.

Bid forms may be obtained from the office of the postmaster, and all bids must be in before 10 a. m., April 5, he added.

Another Skunk Is Found Rabid By Dog Warden

Reporting rabid Pickaway County wildlife has become daily routine to Harry Riffle, county dog warden.

Latest report came Tuesday, when Riffle reported another rabid skunk had been found on the farm of Junior Rhoades in Pickaway Township.

Riffle said Rhoades had been feeding his pigs when a skunk invaded and began shaking a grapefruit rind, much as a dog shakes a rat.

Rhoades killed the animal, and called for the dog warden. An examination of the animal's brain in a Columbus laboratory proved the animal diseased.

Riffle reported no one had been bitten by the animal but that it had mingled with the pigs and other stock.

A wild duck also was checked for the disease, but it proved free from infection.

Riffle said the duck was killed on the farm of Wayne Luckhart, Salt Creek Township, after it attacked him.

To date, there have been nine animals in that vicinity found rabid.

Riffle and county Health Commissioner Dr. A. D. Blackburn have joined forces to warn against taking chances with wildlife.

Nicaragua Offers Canal

During the administration of Theodore Roosevelt, however, plans for a Nicaraguan canal were pigeon-holed in favor of the inter-ocean link across the Isthmus of Panama.

Recently, new proposals for the Nicaraguan project have aroused considerable attention.

These proposals embody an 11-mile cut across a narrow neck of land connecting the Pacific with Lake Nicaragua.

Vessels would travel 60 miles across the lake, then proceed another 90 miles down the San Juan river to the Atlantic port of Greytown.

Backers of the Nicaraguan canal emphasize that it would be 1100 miles shorter for ships which now make the trip from the U. S. through the Panamanian isthmus.

The Atlantic side of the projected Nicaraguan canal is 300 miles closer to American ports, while the Pacific side is about 800 miles closer.

Students Hear Report On Cincy Civics Meeting

Two Circleville high school social civics students held the spotlight in a high school assembly Tuesday morning.

The students, Jean Heine and Edward Wolf, gave a first-hand report of the speech okaying the Atlantic peace pact, delivered in Cincinnati Saturday by Warren Austin, U. S. aide to the UN.

Miss Heine and Wolf, accompanied by their civics instructor, Miss Mary Walters, travelled to the institute at the expense of Circleville Rotary Club.

In part, their report dealt with Austin's speech, which stated the pact "will provide greater security for millions of persons," and with their trip to the Queen City.

The two students and their instructor were among 1,000 other high school students who were delegates from Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana.

Circleville students also will attend an assembly in the auditorium at 2 p. m. Wednesday for a program of music and instruction.

The Wednesday assembly will be put on by Herve Rainwell, who is blind, and his companion, Jack Crowell.

The men are slated to play an organ and piano duet, following which the men will explain how the Braille system of reading with the fingers is taught.

The commission stated in an eight-page finding that Ohio Bell's application submitted Feb. 2, 1948, was fully approved.

PUCO said that the boost would raise present annual collected rates and expenses from $85,443,096 to $93,918,956.

Every state metropolis with the exception of Cincinnati is served by the Bell system. In hearings held before the utilities commission beginning last November almost 20 cities and villages actively opposed the rate hike.

The cities charged that the proposed rate increase would give the company more than a fair return on its investment.

Threatened Oil Shortage Licked

by Oil Industry...and Billions of Dollars

Last year at this time, there was a threatened shortage of petroleum products.

Today, there is no shortage.

In one year, the tremendous investment made since the war by the oil industry has begun to pay off in a swiftly increasing supply of oil.

In Ohio, alone, it's been a big job. And when we began to figure what was needed to do our share of that job, we felt exactly like the man who starts out to do the week's grocery shopping with a $5 bill! For in spite of doing record business and making record earnings, we just plain didn't have enough money. We used up funds set aside for replacing worn-out equipment. We used savings. We used earnings. And, because earnings were good enough to make our credit good, we "ran up a bill" by selling more stock... by borrowing new money.

Today, we're only part way through our building program... and you are enjoying the results in a full supply of oil, and in prices already lower for some petroleum products.

But part way isn't far enough! We believe you'll agree... it will be good for everybody if oil industry earnings continue to be enough to bring you all the oil you need.

FREEDOM AND CARES

IF THE United States Conference of Mayors could be considered an official voice for the cities of the nation, many grains of salt would have to be taken with the often-heard statement that cities want greater political freedom. It has been said many times in many places that cities in general want more leeway to decide and make changes in their own form of government, to explore new plans of taxation, and to run their own affairs free from interference by higher government.

But, in resolutions adopted at its recent meeting in Washington, the Conference of Mayors said that the cities do not want the burden of dealing with housing and slum clearance problems, the growing headache of traffic movement, the expansion of schools and development of public works.
These worries, the mayors think, belong in the realm of the federal government. And they want no part of the rent control question.

Much of the general opposition to the growth of federal government is based on the argument that the central government should not be so big and strong, should not reach into so many avenues of the individual's everyday life. But all too often those who oppose federal project housing, to take a controversial example, are not willing as an alternative to shoulder the burden of local development of slum areas to bring them up to a recognized adequate standard. Freedom and responsibility go hand in hand; those who are unwilling to accept care will not be able to retain liberty.

COLLEGE TRUSTEES

WHY should college trustees be exclusively business and professional men? Why not include representatives of labor, of the college employees, and of the students?
These are among the questions asked by Dr. Martin P. Chworowsky, co-ordinator of inter-group relations at Columbia University, in a lecture at Boston.

Some colleges and universities elect their trustees. These could immediately adopt Dr. Chworowsky's suggestions merely by voting for nominees of this type. Experience with alumni voting indicates a tendency to prefer the business type to any other, even the professional. Now and then some popular retired professor breaks through the magic circle. Wage earners do so almost never. Yet a broader type of college trustee would justify itself in increased popular support, and in a wider knowledge of the world in which the college lives.

Lewis' Cease-Work Reduces Lower Stockpile Would Aid
Above Ground Coal Supply Miners in Next Bargaining

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—There is more than meets the eye in John L. Lewis' cease-work order to eastern soft coal miners.

This time, the beetle-browed union chief has signaled a double play: (1) to defeat the appointment of James Boyd as chief of the United States Bureau of Mines, and (2) to cut the nation's coal supply above ground.

The second—unannounced, but more important, aim—will put the United Mine Workers in a better bargaining position when their contract with the mine operators comes up for renewal June 30.

As long as there is coal available, Lewis stands little chance of getting what he wants in a new agreement. It has been estimated that present coal above ground will last about 60 days.

A two-week work stoppage, however, will cut that supply to 46 days. However, the very fact that no coal is being mined to replace that already above ground and used during the "protest stand" means that this 60-day supply will fade away much more rapidly.

Instead of ending with a supply good for 46 days after the stoppage, the nation will more likely have only between 30 and 40 days' supply on hand.

With such a comparatively low coal pile ready for shipment, the operators will more than likely be ready to listen to Mr. Lewis' demands.

John L. Lewis

George E. Sokolsky's
These Days

Perhaps the most interesting trial in recent American history, ranking in significance with the John Peter Zenger and the Scopes trials, is that of the 11 members of the national committee of the Communist Party which is now proceeding, after long delay, before Judge Harold Medina in the federal court here.

The 11 Communists are indicted for having entered into a conspiracy against the government of the United States. None of them denies his associations with the others; rather they maintain that they operate a political party and that they are being tried because their philosophy has become unpopular. They say that actually the Communist Party is being tried. This Judge Medina, in instructions to the jury, denied, insisting that each man indicted is before the court as an individual.

The Communists and their lawyers apparently do not care whether they win or lose the case. They are using the opportunity of the trial to indict the United States, our judicial system, our jury system, our jurisprudence. The object is clear: They are trying to show the nations of Europe, particularly those behind the iron curtain, that the Anglo-Saxon system of jurisprudence is unjust. They used 39 days in an effort to prove that our juries are badly chosen. That they failed in no manner bothers them, for they had no hope of success. The object was propaganda abroad.

Judge Medina is no comfort to them. With unerring and unflinching patience, he permits the counsel for the Communists a latitude never before permitted in our courts. With malicious effrontery, they have insulted, ridiculed and abused the judge, hoping he would lose his temper and hold one of them in contempt.

That he has not done, although the provocation was great. He has been accused to his face of every crime in the calendar short of murder and how he contains himself has become the marvel of this city. But he does, and the Communist lawyers resort to new stratagems to no avail.

Eugene Dennis, secretary general of the Communist Party, dismissed his lawyer to assume that role himself. The object of this move was to make it possible for Dennis to make prolonged speeches on extraneous matter. It will be interesting to watch him examine himself. Earl Browder, his predecessor, wants to testify for him, but the Communists are afraid to have Browder as a witness, for, since they expelled him from the party and attacked and abused him, even going so far as to accuse him of preparing to join the Roman Catholic church, which they regard as a heinous offense, there is no telling what Browder might say. It could perhaps be proved on cross-examination that Browder organized the alleged conspiracy from which they expelled him. They would not like to have that admission.

DIET AND HEALTH

Different Conditions Which Cause Severe Pain in Chest

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EARLY in this century, it was thought that acute indigestion was a frequent cause of chest pain. However, with a better understanding it has been learned that so-called acute indigestion was most often really an attack of a heart condition called coronary thrombosis.

By coronary thrombosis is meant the formation of a blood clot in one of the arteries which supplies the heart muscle with blood. During an attack of coronary thrombosis, there is severe pain in the chest.

Other Causes

There are a number of other causes of chest pain. One cause may be spasm of the coronary arteries known as angina pectoris. An attack of angina pectoris may be brought on by exercise, excitement, overeating, or cold. The attack of pain is relieved by rest, and the taking of nitroglycerin which relieves the spasm.

Another cause of this chest pain is an aneurysm of the aorta. The aorta is the large blood vessel coming from the heart. The aneurysm is a swelling or dilatation of this large blood vessel. In this disorder, the first symptom is usually a sudden severe pain under the breast bone. An X-ray of the aorta usually reveals the presence of this aneurysm. Symptoms may develop due to pressure on the surrounding tissues by the aneurysm.

Still another cause of chest pain is pericarditis or inflammation of the lining membrane around the heart. In such cases, the pain may pass upward into the neck or left shoulder. The pain may be made worse by coughing or deep breathing. A thorough study of the heart, including an electrocardiogram or electric tracing of the heart beat, is helpful in making the diagnosis. X-ray examination is also of value.

Pain in Chest

Among other conditions which may produce pain in the chest is a rupture or hernia through the diaphragm, which is the large muscle that separates the chest from the abdomen. Still other conditions are ulcer of the stomach or the esophagus which leads from the mouth to the stomach, gallbladder disease, and conditions affecting the lungs.

Thus, it may be seen that chest pain, when present, calls for a thorough study by the physician to determine the cause. Then proper treatment may be instituted and often a life can be saved.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. D.: My left breast is larger than the right one. What could be the cause of this?

Answer: It is not unusual for the one breast to be larger than the other. The exact cause is not known; however, the condition requires no treatment.

A member of the staff of a famous Hollywood producer did an unprecedented thing a few weeks ago. The producer had just outlined his idea for a new picture. The staff man coughed nervously, looked around for the nearest exit, and piped up, "Boss, I think your idea is terrible."

There was a stunned silence in the room for a moment; then the producer said quietly, "Joe please do me a favor. When you talk to me hereafter, keep quiet."

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

LIBBY'S cocktail party was in full swing when Beatrice arrived. The living room was a churning mass of color, occasionally punctuated by the penguin-like figures of the cater's men. The babel of voices had risen to a high shrill pitch. The hats would have been laughable had they not been so fashionable. Flowers were everywhere in the apartment in picturesque profusion. So faint was the music coming from a string orchestra that the men seemed to be playing from silenced instruments.

Beatrice saw it all from the mirror in the foyer. Suddenly the picture sickened her, and she had no desire to enter into it and be a part of it—to murmur meaningless nothings, to drink, to nibble at food, to add her party voice and party laughter.

She saw David bending his face to the hot face of a blonde woman, and she knew that David was seeing it as she was. There was too much—too much of everything—too much noise, too much waste of food and drink, too many flowers, too many inharmonious colors. Her feelings were intensified when she saw Libby, for Libby's gold dress was too daring, and she was wearing too many jewels, and too much make-up. She looked more brittle than usual; a woman of no flexibility, no softness. She looked as if she could neither sway nor bend, and that she could break like a dry stick.

Too much, Beatrice thought. Too much of everything. If she wants David, this is not the way. This is the way to lose him, for the waste here sickens him as it sickens me, the waste behind the facade of all this blitheness. Fum, Porter called it. He didn't want to spoil my fun. It used to be. It isn't any more. What's the matter with me? I have become a spectator, not a participant.

She could not bring herself to go in. I can't be a hypocrite, she thought. Turning, she went to the other side of the apartment and knocked at the door of Jane's room.

"Come in," Jane said softly.

As Jane arose from the window seat and stood with her hands locked behind her, Beatrice briefly noted the room. Though it was a beautiful and cheerful room, it was an impersonal room. Imper-sonal and cold. For nothing in it was individually Jane's. No silly picture. No picture of an actor or of a popular crooner. No school pennant. Nothing frivolous or gay or young. There was only a picture of Dick Gundry, her father, in a gold frame on the chest. Except for that, it wasn't Jane's room at all. It was just another of Libby's rooms.

Of what had Jane been thinking in her twilight musings as she had gazed down upon the darkening street? She was wearing her school uniform, a simple blue cotton dress with white collar and cuffs. The way her thick brown hair curled was natural and lovely.

Copyright 1948, by Margaret Gorman Nichols. Published by Macrae-Smith Company. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

"You look lovely, Bee," she said demurely. "You always do. How... how is Mother's party going?"

"I really don't know. I just came."

"It's... it's noisy."

"They always are. You have to make yourself heard. I didn't know if you'd be here, Jane. I wondered if you'd like me to bring you a plate of food."

"Oh, would you? I guess dinner will be awfully late." She smiled ruefully. "I'm hungry now. Of course I wouldn't dare leave my room."

"Why not?"

"The way I look?" She looked at Beatrice in despair. "Oh, Bee, I'm so tired of not being able to do anything the way I want to do it, and now... now I've got to wear glasses!"

Beatrice went to her and held her in her arms until her sobs subsided.

Then Jane's words gushed forth again. "Oh, Bee, I'm so unhappy! Can't you do something for me? Can't anyone help me? Can't you help me?"

"I'll try, darling."

"I'll look horrible in glasses. I look horrible in everything. There's only one person in the world who thinks I'm wonderful, and that's Marianne, and that's because she doesn't know any other girls my age. If she knew some of the girls in my class who are treated like... like people. I'm not a baby. I'm not going to be treated like a baby. I don't want to be ugly..."

"You're not ugly, Jane."

"Oh, yes, I am. I'll never be pretty. One of the girls in my class is having a party tonight and I wasn't invited—I'm never invited! Nobody ever invites me. I'm anything! I've been hoping and hoping that Mother would see..."

She broke away and went over to the window again and dried her eyes. She shook her head.

"You can't do anything, Bee. I shouldn't ask you when there's nothing you can do. I wouldn't want you and Mother to quarrel over me. You've been friends so long. There's nothing anyone can do except me. And... and I'm going to do it."

"What are you going to do, Jane?"

"You'll see. I've got to think it out. I've got to have more courage than I have now. I've never had very much. I've always done what Mother told me to do. I've tried to be good. I've tried to bring home good report cards, and to practice my music. Everything else has been brought to me and done for me, so that I don't know how to do anything for myself. It might sound crazy, but when you've never cooked an egg or washed a pair of stockings for yourself, you want to do those things. One of the girls in my class cooks the dinner for her family on the cook's night off. I'd love to do that, but Bessie won't let me in the kitchen. I want to do things, Bee. I want to learn how. I want to contribute. Mother..."

...now lucky I am. I'm not so lucky at all."

After a moment Jane said, "I don't mean I want to be out there at Mother's party. No! Oh, Bee, she's so wonderful and glamorous, but why won't she let me grow up? Why won't she let me have a party? Oh, she'll let me invite girls in for lunch, but it's dull when that's all you're allowed to do. No wonder the other girls think I'm queer." She swallowed hard. "I think Mother hates men. Bee, I think that's why she won't let me even go to a movie with a boy. She hated my father. And Daddy is the best man who ever lived, the kindest, nicest, and the happiest. People say wonderful things about my father and I'm... I'm proud of him!"

"He's proud of you, too," Beatrice said. "He has told me so."

"And I like David. I like him ever so much. And I wish, I wish, he'd ask Mother to marry him. But he doesn't come as often as he did at first. He hardly ever comes here anymore." Her candid, misty eyes roamed the room. "Something's happened here, Bee. Everything is wrong. This isn't my home anymore. And I can't hide what I think and feel. I... I don't want to be wild, Bee, or neglect my lessons or my music. I don't want to do anything wrong. All I want is the right to be almost sixteen. You understand, don't you?"

Beatrice nodded. "I understand very well. You should have seen me before your grandmother gave me the right to be almost sixteen."

Jane's eyes quickened. "Golly, I'm sorry. I forgot. You're supposed to be at the party. I'm all right now. Really, I'm fine."

When someone knocked at the door, both Beatrice and Jane turned simultaneously. When Jane said, "Come in," David entered. He had a plate of food in his hand. "For the sweetest girl of all," he said. He put his arm around Jane and kissed the top of her head.

Laughing, with tears starting in her eyes again, Jane looked from Beatrice to David.

"You're so good to me. Bee was just coming out to get me something to eat."

David smiled. "It's not at all unusual that Beatrice and I should have the same idea."

Jane said, "I've kept her too long, David. Make her go out with the others and have a good time. Thanks, Bee. Thanks for listening."

Presently Beatrice was in the living room feeling as if she were being churned by a stick.

David took two glasses from a tray. Their eyes met when he gave one to her.

"You hear the sounds of voices and music, Beatrice. I hear the sound of time."

"Fast rushing by."

"April first. I have a plane reservation."

Mrs. Martin Cromley Heads List Of Officers Elected By Monday Club

Mrs. Webb Reads Paper At Meeting

A new slate of officers was elected by members of Monday Club when they met in the trustee's room of Memorial hall.

Mrs. Martin Cromley was elected president. She will assume the office at the first Fall meeting. It now is held by Mrs. James P. Moffitt.

Mrs. Arthur McCoard was elected first vice-president; Mrs. Dudley J. Carpenter, second vice-president; Mrs. Robert Young, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Joseph Bell, recording secretary; and Mrs. R. R. Bales, treasurer.

Program committee for 1950-1951 is composed of Mrs. David Cromley, Mrs. Donald E. Mitchell and Mrs. Kenneth Robbins. Miss Eleanor Snyder will serve as music chairman and Miss Florence Hoffman as member-at-large. Mrs. Dick Boerner was elected to active membership in the club.

Mrs. David Harman and Mrs. Martin Cromley were appointed delegates to the state convention of Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs to take place April 5, 6 and 7 at Toledo.

Mrs. Cleon E. Webb read a paper entitled "New Crops For The New World" during the program period. She was presented by Miss Sophia Parks who served as chairman for the evening.

Mrs. Webb explained at the opening of her paper that "in the Americas today great and durable news is being written on the scrolls of the production fields"—then she added "America needs more and better crops."

In discussing the importance of the tropical fruits she pointed out that they had received the attention of the horticulturalists, as had our Northern fruits there would be a greater story to tell. Mrs. Webb said, "rapid transportation and refrigeration have completely revolutionized the tropical fruit culture in our own generation."

"Bananas, unknown in our northern markets a century ago," she emphasized, "are a common fruit at the corner market, today. The avocado, which was practically unknown in the markets of the north, 50 years ago, is a common constituent in the salad bowl today. California now ships something like 20 million pounds of avocados annually."

Not to be overlooked is the mango. But, because of its relatively perishable nature, it is probably too much to expect that the mango as an export fruit for Northern markets can ever vie with such products as the pineapple, banana, and avocado.

In her account Mrs. Webb also included "Maize in the New World." She thoroughly reviewed its antiquity saying that it undoubtedly was first cultivated in America in Peru, and probably originated there, and nowhere else had it been so highly perfected and cultivated on such an enormous scale.

She told, how, through the efforts of Dr. East and Dr. Shull and their colleagues, hybrid corn was developed. It was said that hybrid corn "caught on" slowly year by year until its great advantages for modern standardized mechanized farming were adequately demonstrated, and then the whole corn belt switched to hybrid corn almost overnight.

Another striking agricultural development in the United States in recent times has been the rapid rise of the soy bean. Remarkable progress has been made in the last few years in developing food and industrial uses from the soy bean, oil, and meal.

In concluding, Mrs. Webb discussed briefly rubber, cinchona and Manila hemp. "All are new crops to the western hemisphere which might profitably be grown under shade."

"New crops for the New World" are thus forever a part of the human equation, according to the speaker. She added, "they cannot possibly succeed without the interest, the energy, the toil, sweat, and sometimes the tears and blood of 'work' day farmers," who are game to contribute and risk their time and lands, their experiences, and skills to the cause of proving and establishing a mere growing plant as a beneficial and lasting crop."

History Of Red Cross Detailed By Mary Lutz

Miss Mary Lutz, executive secretary of Pickaway County chapter American Red Cross, spoke Monday evening to members of the American Legion Auxiliary on "The History and Workings Of The Red Cross."

She opened her informative discussion by saying "as far back as 4500 B. C. a king of Persia issued an edict to his medical men not only to help their men but those of the enemy." She added "This was where the humanity phase of Red Cross first originated."

The guest speaker elaborated on the history of Red Cross by reminding her listeners that "in 1854 Florence Nightingale gave her services in the Crimean War and influenced thinking of her day." She added "A Swiss resident visited a battlefield in Northern Italy where he saw thousands of dead and half dead, then returned to his native Geneva where he wrote a book. Propaganda resulting from this book was responsible for the founding of the Red Cross committee, which still operates in Geneva. This body is responsible for keeping the Geneva Treaty which was signed in 1864."

Miss Lutz said, "a United States ambassador brought the Red Cross idea back here. Clara Barton was responsible for the organization of the Red Cross in the United States during the Civil War."

Miss Lutz stressed "Red Cross is not a charity organization but a service organization." She then outlined services of the chapters and talked on one of its many phases. She spoke on "Safety." Miss Lutz said "safety is gained over a long period of time—to insure our own safety we must also insure our neighbor's safety." She added "Safety does not begin at any designated point—we must be educated to safety." Her closing words were "Red Cross is made up of peoples of the world and it is compiled of what the people have made of it."

Mrs. Harold Stansbury presided at the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Mont Vorhees. The group voted to provide entertainment the third Monday of every month at Chillicothe Veterans hospital. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Harry Lane, Mrs. James Stout and Mrs. Ralph Arney.

U. S. Warned Keep Friendly With Up-And-Coming Brazil

Americans were warned here Monday evening they must start cultivating genuine friendship in Brazil if they are to keep on friendly terms with that rapidly-growing South American country.

Sounding the warning was Jorge Motta, Brazilian newspaperman who is now taking his master's degree at Ohio State university. He was guest speaker before Circleville Kiwanis Club in Pickaway County.

Motta declared that Americans have a tendency to "look down" on Brazilians and consider their Latin neighbors to be "outcasts and monkeys."

The Brazilian spokesman declared that his people and Americans have the wrong impression of each other. While the Yankee "looks down" on the Brazilian, the average man from south of the border thinks of the American as a country made up of "gangsters and unfaithful women."

The latter impression, Motta said, is because of American movies.

HOWEVER, Motta said he believed that as Brazil "grows up" it will gain a better impression of the United States and realize its movies do not depict the true picture.

Meanwhile, he declared, America must realize that "Brazil is no longer asleep and is growing and it stands in line to succeed America as the world's leading power."

He cited that Brazil is larger in area than the United States and possesses all the natural resources it needs.

At the moment, he said, Brazil is an agricultural nation but it is being developed into an industrial power.

He said America could keep Brazil's friendship if it would try and understand and help the South American nation.

He pointed out that Brazil needs American investments and capital but that it is not interested in capital that is not put into the country permanently. He declared that capital that is placed in Brazil for a quick turnover and a fast profit is not welcome.

Motta traced the history of Brazil in comparison to America.

He said that America was settled by the Pilgrims who came here to colonize. Brazil was settled by the Portuguese who sought gold and silver.

THE PILGRIMS came with the intention of staying, while the fortune-hunters were "a crew of sailors, thieves and assassins" who sought only riches.

The Portuguese frightened the Indian natives and drove many of them into the interior. The Indian women, however, were attracted by the white man and intermingled with him.

Later, the Portuguese imported South African Negroes—people who were trained and educated as farmers and doctors. They were absorbed by the Portuguese-Indian element and thus have evolved the Brazilian.

Motta declared that it was not until 1808 that development started in Brazil. Portugal had held back progress, fearing that the great South American nation would exceed the homeland in power and wealth. But when Napoleon invaded Portugal, the king fled to Brazil.

Previously to that, Motta reported, a Portuguese newspaperman went to Brazil although he did not visit ashore. Remaining aboard his ship, he wrote high-power letters back to Portugal praising the new nation as one "which is so wealthy there is nothing which cannot be produced here."

The statement was not then true, but present-day Brazilians claim the statement as near fact now.

"Brazil now is the richest nation in the world, but it is also poor because it does not have the ability to produce," Motta said.

"Brazil sometime in the future will be as great as America—after we grow up," the young Brazilian declared.

In criticizing American business ventures in Brazil, Motta declared that the Yankee is "too hasty in making deals." He explained that the American goes to Brazil "for the weekend, drinks a couple of whiskies and is ready to close a $5 million deal on the spot."

"THE BRAZILIAN, however, does not like to work that fast—he likes to live, too. He likes to take time out in the middle of a deal to enjoy himself," Motta declared.

Motta declared that Brazil wants to continue as a friend to America. Whether it does depends on America, he said.

Motta reported that 45 percent of Brazilian exports is coffee. Brazilians drink much coffee, themselves. However, consumption is not in large cups as America uses, but in demitasse size. He said the Brazilian is particular about his coffee. An old ruling declares that coffee at its best must be: "Sweet as love, dark as night and hot as hell."

With plenty of beef in Brazil, steaks are eaten regularly. Motta said that a common breakfast is steak and wine. He said that Brazilians do not drink milk after age 6.

The Brazilian spokesman said he was not overly enthused about American women. He explained that in Brazil, the man is head of the house and that his word is law. He said a Brazilian saying declares that "it is the rooster not the hen, that crows." He finds American women "too independent." But he added, coyly, that "I have sometimes found this to be convenient."

Cupid Slipping In '49 Compared To Last Year

After a rigorous leap year rush during 1948, Dan Cupid appears to be behind schedule here in 1949.

According to figures in Pickaway County probate court, only 15 couples have exchanged marriage promises here since the new year, the same number as were married here in January of 1948.

So far there have been five marriages in January, six in February and four in March. Last year at this time, however, a total of 34 couples had taken the leap.

Altogether, a total of 165 couples were married in 1948, with the largest number of marriages performed in June. The figures show 26 couples were married in June, 1948, while the second high months were March and July, with 16 each.

Here is a tally of leap year marriages in Pickaway County last year by the months:

January, 15; February, 13; March, 16; April, 11; May, 10; June, 26; July, 16; August, 13; September, 10; October, 11; November, 15; and December, 9.

COLUMBUS, March 29 — Columbus police reported another American Zinc Oxide Co. disorder as the defense today continued its case in the trial of 16 CIO Smelter Workers accused of breaking a court injunction against mass picketing.

Glenn Nice, 27-year-old AZO employee, told police he was accosted by two men in downtown Columbus. When they asked him where he worked and he refused to reply, Nice said one of the men stabbed him in the hand.

Sweet as fresh-cut Clover.
in minutes—not hours!

You'll breeze through washday when you get your Hamilton Automatic Clothes Dryer. You'll save hours. You'll not have to struggle with heavy baskets, nor cope with clothespins, clotheslines and props.

What'll you care if the weather's rainy or murky, or the air's dusty or smoky? You dry indoors!

Your Hamilton will be waiting to tumble your clothes fluffy-dry in a matter of minutes, ever so gently and quietly. Put them in right from your wringer—flick the switch and—go read a poem, or phone to Myrtle. Your Hamilton will turn itself off when the drying's done.

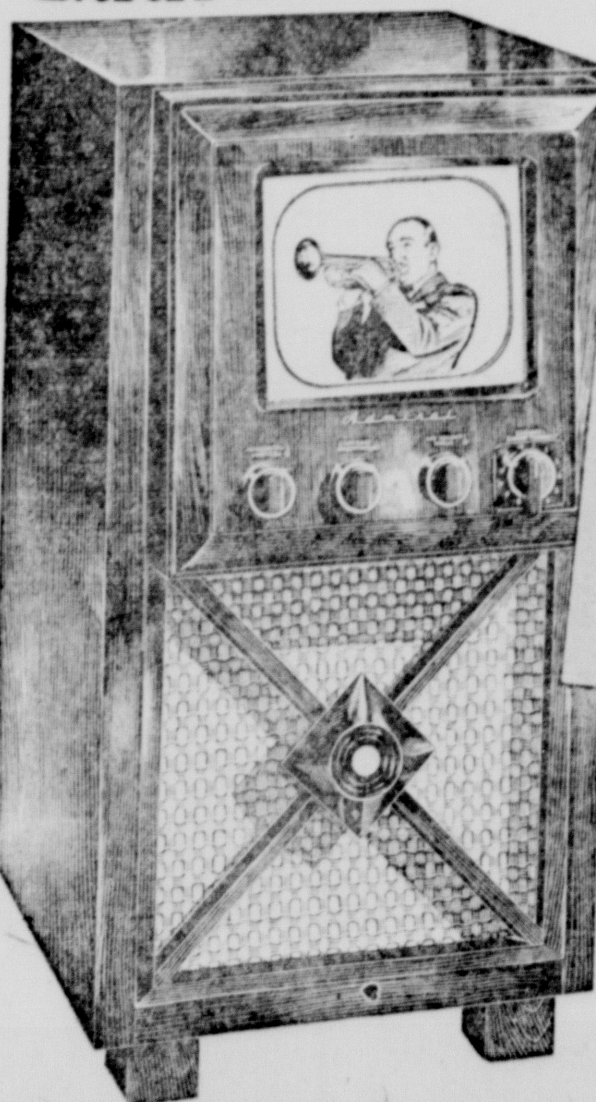

Your clothes will dry wrinkle-free (towels and such won't need the touch of an iron). They'll be sanitized, too, by a powerful ultra-violet sun-lamp, and sweetly freshened with sunshine-and-breeze action. They'll smell like the very breath of Spring.

1949 Packard Eight, 130-HP Club Sedan

Packard owners call it "the car with the built-in brand-new feel." And the fact is—this newest member of a long-lived line is the huskiest Packard ever built!

Proof: Penny-accurate service records, submitted by all Packard dealers, show that the service needs of the new Packard Eight are the lowest in Packard history!

That's another important reason why the demand for new Packards is at an all-time high.

Naturally... today's buyers are impressed by the styling and appointments of this luxurious motor car. They're delighted with its "limousine" ride—and astounded by its spectacular gasoline mileage!

But most of all (at the prices all cars are carrying today), they want

Mayor Urges Observance Of 'Army Day' In City

A proclamation issued by Mayor Thurman I. Miller designates April 6 as Army Day in Circleville.

"Nearly 160 years ago George Washington advised his fellow citizens 'to be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of preserving peace,' Mayor Miller said.

"Another President—Herbert Hoover—has advised the American people that this is the most critical time in our history. No sensible American wants war, but when the seeds of war are being scattered through the world by interests bitterly hostile to the American way of life, it is time for the American people to give sober reflection to the United States Armed Forces—their greatest insurance against war.

"ARMY DAY provides an opportunity for our people to consider the readiness of their army to serve their interests in peace or war. It is axiomatic that the effectiveness of the United States Army depends in large measure on the degree of support granted it by the people," the mayor continued.

"Isn't it common sense, then, or the people to insist that the security of this nation be maintained at maximum efficiency, and that their Army, as well as their Navy and Air Force be granted every reasonable support?

"Army Day, therefore, is a time for the people to honor their Army for its significant contributions to the development of our country."

The mayor's proclamation follows: Whereas, April 6, 1949, has been designated by the President and the Congress of the United States, and by the governor of Ohio, as Army Day, to commemorate the outstanding contributions, past and present, of the United States Army to the peace, welfare and security of our nation, and

Whereas, the theme for Army Day—"The United States Army—part of the team for security"—emphasizes that our Army is working together with our Navy and Air Force for a common cause—the security of the United States, and

Whereas, other purposes of Army Day are to honor America's soldiers living and dead who served or who are serving in the Regular Army, the National Guard and the organized reserve to acquaint the people of the United States with the national services rendered by the United States Army, and the necessities of organization and means which make these services possible, and to emphasize the responsibilities of every citizen and every community to support "The United States Army—part of the team—for security";

Therefore, as mayor of the city of Circleville, I do hereby officially declare April 6, 1949, as Army Day in this city, and call on all of our citizens to honor the United States Army on this day as a foremost defender of those inalienable rights we cherish as American citizens, and as a principal part of the Armed Forces of the United States which are dedicated to the defense of our country and of world peace."

—Thurman I. Miller.

Police Awaiting Poison Report

CAMBRIDGE, March 29—The state highway patrol today awaited reports from the FBI and several cities in the death of a man who committed suicide by swallowing poison when stopped by patrolmen near here.

The motorist, identified by papers found on his body as Merick Le Mert Phipson, grabbed several crystals and swallowed them as patrolmen stopped him to question him. He was believed to have pulled away from a Cambridge service station without paying for five gallons of gasoline. The car had Indiana license plates and was reported stolen from Indianapolis.

Jewish Appeal Being Pressed

COLUMBUS, March 29 — A member of the Israel parliament told the Ohio Conference of the United Jewish Appeal that funds are needed today if Israel is to win the peace.

David Hacohen, director of Israel's housing cooperative, appealed for the state's $10,250,000 part of the $250 million national goal. He said:

"We fought a war to make a homeland for our brothers and sisters.

"If we are unable to house, feed, clothe and find productive work for them we will have fought that war in vain."

Lima Man, 26, Freed Again In Wife-Slaying

LIMA, March 29—Richard E. Snyder, 26, was back with his family in nearby Louisville today after being freed of a first degree murder charge in the death of his wife.

Snyder's two children have awaited his return under the care of his parents.

Snyder was indicted in the mysterious, still unsolved, fatal stabbing of his wife, Eloise, last Aug. 29. Her body was discovered in the family car parked in a deserted driveway.

The indictment against the man was thrown out by Judge Moran B. Jenkins at the request of Prosecutor L. B. Steele, who said there was insufficient evidence to warrant prosecution.

Last year, an Allen County grand jury refused to indict him for the slaying.

Snyder's case came into the public eye when a microphone was found hidden behind a radiator in a room in which he held conferences with his attorney. Three Lima law enforcement officers were tried and convicted before Judge Jenkins for placing the "microphone."

College Starts On New Hall

MARIETTA, March 29—Work was started at Marietta college today on a temporary Student Union to replace Parsons Hall, which was destroyed by fire March 12.

College officials said a one-story government surplus war building will be converted for use until a permanent center can be built.

NEW YORK, March 29—Canned goods, sugar, coffee and raw materials worth $100 million lay dormant in 300 struck warehouses here today.

The AFL International Longshoremen's Association, headed by Joseph P. Ryan, called out its 1,500 members following a breakdown in wage negotiations. The union is demanding a 13-cent-an-hour increase retroactive to Oct. 1, 1948, from members of the Warehousemen's Association of the Port of New York, Inc.

Chinese Envoy Refuses Post

MOSCOW, March 29—Dr. Foo Ping-Sheung, Chinese ambassador to Russia, disclosed today he has informed his government he will not accept the post of foreign minister in the Nationalist government.

Dr. Foo, dean of the diplomatic corps in Moscow, was offered the post last week.

270 Musicians To Be Heard In County Festival

About 270 Pickaway County musicians will participate in the annual Spring Music Festival in Jackson Township school beginning at 8:15 p. m. April 8.

The group consists of a 70-piece all-county orchestra, directed by Charles Shell of Ashville, and a 202-voice all-county choral group, directed by Mrs. Mary Oesterling of Walnut Township.

The orchestra will open the festival with an overture, followed by a novelty in swing-time, a promenade and other selections.

Choral selections will follow the orchestra in the form of an Easter cantata. The choral group will open its program with "The Palms," and then into the "Redemption's Song," a cantata.

Seven soloists will be featured in the vocal group, selected by Mrs. Oesterling during recent try-outs. Accompanists will be Nancy Hedges of Ashville and Kathryn Morris of Pickaway Township.

GIRLS BETTER PUTTERS

Corcoran Booming Golf Prowess Of Fairer Sex

NEW YORK, March 29—Fred Corcoran built up men's golf to the point where any caddy could become rich and famous overnight as a player, then departed from the scene under the influence of numerous ungrateful nudges.

But he's back in the game now as deep as ever with a promotion program for the neglected women players, and as he sets upon this task he reveals three convictions:

1—Women's golf will blossom into a bigtime spectacle and a rich enterprise;

2—Women today play golf as well as men did, say 20 years ago;

3—Women are better putters than men.

Corcoran, a Bostonian who acts as business manager for Ted Williams, of the Red Sox, and for Stan Musial, of the St. Louis Cardinals, has latched on to women's golf as one of the great undeveloped fields in sports.

They are now playing for purses comparable to the $80,000 a year at stake for the men when he took over the PGA tournaments in 1936. Under his direction the men's purses have soared to about a half million.

THE WOMEN are being organized to play for an average of $3,500 a tournament, and the highlight will be the Women's National Open championship at Landsdown, Md., in September. The purse will be for this one $7,500, or just $2,500 less than the men will get for their similar event.

Among the women are more than a dozen professionals, including former National Champions Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Patty Berg, Betty Jameson, Helen Hicks, Betty Hicks and Louise Suggs.

Tournaments are open to the amateurs as well as the professionals, and one way and another, the pulchritude dangled near runs rampant around the courses when the girls start whacking out the shots.

Aside from everything else, they can play golf. In the titleholders event at Augusta, Ga., Peggy Kirk, of Findlay, O., scored a record of 299 for the tournament over the National Golf Club course a few days ago.

She thrilled a large gallery by closing out the 72-hole event with a final day 72, and duplicated a score made by Bobby Jones, then the incomparable, when he won the Augusta Open in 1930.

The score by Miss Kirk, an amateur, was duplicated by Misses Suggs and Berg, of the professionals, as an indication of how far women's golf has progressed. They played from the men's tees.

Aside from the open to be played on the Prince George course in Baltimore for that $7,500, the women will get $3,500 in prizes for a 54-hole eastern championship at Essex Falls, N. J., May 27-29 and a nationwide tour is being formed.

Spring Camp Roundup

Pittsburgh's Pirates are beginning to shape up as the same old bunch of fence busters.

The Bucs scored no less than 12 runs in the fourth inning of their slugfest with the Cubs yesterday, trouncing Chicago 15 to 11.

Ralph Kiner, as usual, was the big gun. The Pittsburgh strong boy, who hopes to add to his homerun laurels this year, walloped a grand slam homer during this scoring spree.

New York's Yankees absorbed a 7 to 3 drubbing from the Phillies, but were cheered by another brilliant pitching performance by Paul Hinrichs, a divinity student from Iowa. The pitching preacher permitted only two singles in the three innings he worked.

Hinrichs, who will be remembered as the $40,000 bonus kid after Chandler freed him from the Detroit organization, now has worked 13 scoreless innings against big leaguers and allowed but five hits.

ANOTHER NOVEL pitcher this year may be Erv Dusak, the St. Louis Cardinal veteran who can't land an outfield job this year, so is going to try his hand on the mound.

Yesterday the Cards needed both pitching and hitting as Prince Hal Newhouser's pitching featured Detroit's 5 to 1 win over St. Louis.

The injury jinx struck in two places. Mel Parnell, south paw pitcher, was struck by a line drive and will be lost to the Boston Red Sox for some time. Infielder Eddie Miksis of Brooklyn suffered a concussion under the left eye when struck by a thrown ball.

The Cleveland Indians came home to their Spring base at Tucson today with a four-game winning streak and their batters and pitchers both in top form.

The Tribe gave one of its best demonstrations of hitting power in walloping Cleveland's San Diego farmhands, 10-5, yesterday in the Indians' last game of an extended California tour.

The victory marked a successful end to the barnstorming trip that started out with five one-run losses in six games.

The Clevelanders were to carry a 10-7 record into their battle today with the Chicago Cubs in the first of six Tucson clashes.

Cleveland's sluggers took the spotlight away from the hurlers yesterday for the first time in a week, but for good.

The Tribesmen blasted out three homeruns and 12 hits to smash their Pacific Coast League farm club behind the eight-hit twirling of Lyman Laine and Will Hafez, a pair of promising rookies.

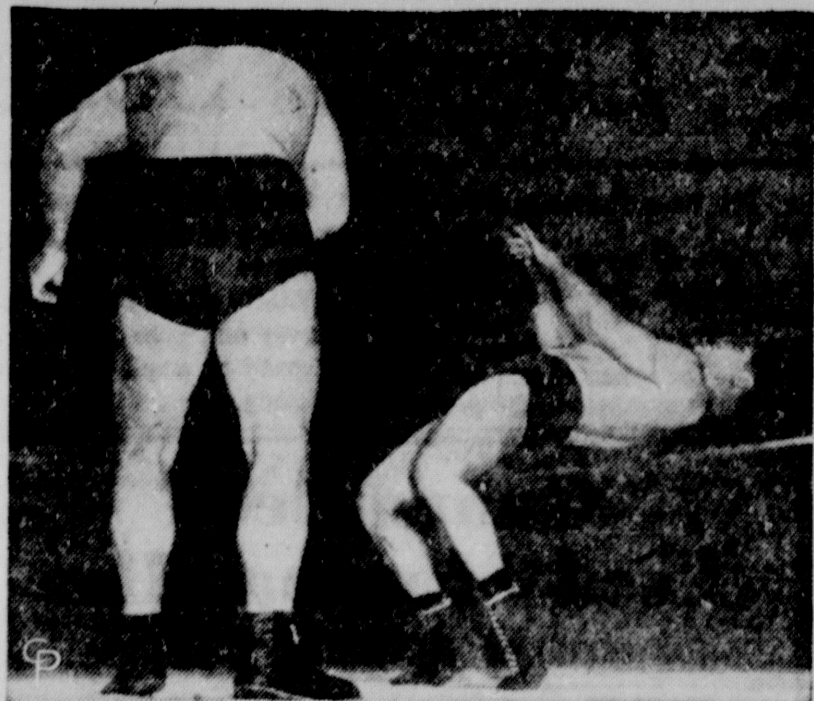

Al Rosen, Joe Gordon and Ray Murray each hit for the circuit, the latter with two mates aboard.

Holland Grabs Horn Memorial

ATLANTA, Ga., March 29—Bill Holland, of Reading, Pa., headed home today with the Ted Horn Memorial Sweepstakes trophy by virtue of winning the national inaugural of AAA auto racing at Lakewood Park speedway here.

He flashed across the finish line yesterday in 17 minutes, 26.41 seconds for the 25-mile memorial run. He bettered the eight-mile course record set by Horn in 1948 by touring the track in five minutes and 22.33 seconds. The former record was five minutes, 28 seconds.

Louis Sets Up Great Party For Himself

CHICAGO, March 29 — The unprecedented anniversary party that Joe Louis arranged for himself—a June 22 heavyweight title fight between Ezzard Charles and Joe Walcott—bore the stamp "official" today, and the ballyhoo ball was rolling.

At Comiskey Park, in the same ring and 12 years to the night following his own ascension to the title throne, a now-retired Louis will promote the Charles-Walcott bout for his vacated championship.

He will give 25 percent of the net receipts to Charles and 25 percent to Walcott, and keep the other 50 for himself and for his partners, James Norris and Arthur Wirtz, in the newly-formed International Boxing Club.

With television adding its glamorous desires to the picture, a million dollar gate is distinctly possible, and nobody knows this better than the International Boxing Club, which purposely selected the outdoor site even though Wirtz and Norris own the big indoor Chicago Stadium, which would offer a proposition rent-free and weather-proof.

Gotham Boxing Decision Is Hit By Commission

NEW YORK, March 29—Boxing referees and judges all over New York state had the jitters today as a result of the unprecedented action by the New York State Athletic Commission in the Jake Lamotta-Robert Villmain fight.

The commission, in the first public censure of its ring officials in the 29 years of existence, handed indefinite suspensions to Referee Harry Ebbetts and Judge Harold Barnes. These two gave the decision to Lamotta although almost everyone else in Madison Square Garden Friday night thought the Frenchman won.

Now a similar case is being readied for the commission. Deputy Commissioner Thomas Grauly of Troy recommends that like action be taken against Referee Jess Doctor and Judge Albino. These two, both Syracuseans, awarded Nick Barone, a light-heavyweight, a most unpopular split decision over Joe Taylor, of Binghamton, in their bout in Syracuse last Friday.

The Tribesmen blasted out three homeruns and 12 hits to smash their Pacific Coast League farm club behind the eight-hit twirling of Lyman Laine and Will Hafez, a pair of promising rookies.

Al Rosen, Joe Gordon and Ray Murray each hit for the circuit, the latter with two mates aboard.

Frenchmen Cop Ski Trophies

SUN VALLEY, Idaho, March 29—A dazzling French national ski team today holds a double victory in the Harriman Cup races.

Henry Oreiller, 1948 Olympic champ and captain of the French team, negotiated fast slopes of 9000-foot Dollar Mountain to victory in the slalom Sunday, while over the brow of the hill Lucienne Coutet-Schmitt was beating the field in the women's slalom.

Oreiller made his two runs in a total time of 120.8 seconds.

His teammate, Georges Panisset, followed with a 121.0 second performance.

7 Varsity Cage Men Are Awarded CHS Letters

A final touch was added to the 1949 Circleville high school basketball season Tuesday when seven varsity players stepped up to receive their letters.

Coach Dorwin Peer, CHS cage mentor, presented awards to Jack Young, Tom Eveland, Harold Hill, Ralph Starkey, Don Cook, John Valentine and Dick Hartinger during a school assembly.

Young, winner of this year's "most valuable player" award from Circleville Booster Club, has been named honorary captain of the team. Instead of another letter, Young elected to receive a medal as substitute.

Sala Is Awarded Bout Decision

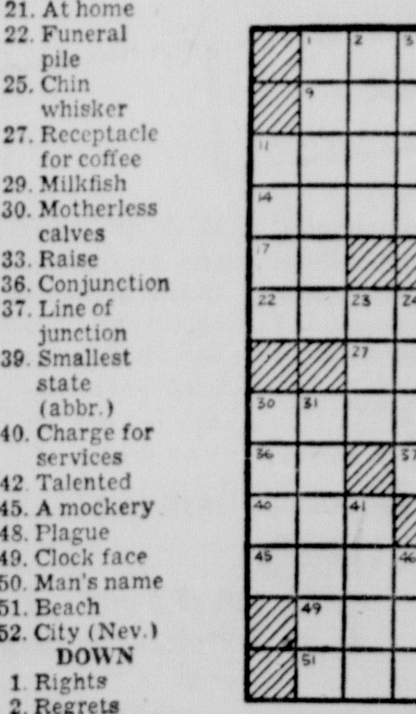

CLEVELAND, March 29—Lee Sala, the free-wheeling swinger from Donora, Pa., moved unobstructedly along his merry middleweight way today with his 53rd pro win in 54 starts.

Sala, a powerful young counter-puncher with the best record in current boxing, knocked off an easy decision win over George Small of Brooklyn last night in the feature 10-rounder of a Cleveland Arena fight show.

Although a few yelps were heard from the slim crowd of 4,186 paying customers, the officials voted unanimously in favor of the flashy Sala.
